Blaimore Council Is Back to Business

Councillor Putnam Endeavors To Unearth Imaginary Evil

The number of ratepayers who occupied comfortable positions within the walls of the council chamber last night brought back to our memories the good old days of Mayor Lyon's regime, when the curious dreams of our ratepayers would tell them that something radically wrong was being transacted by those in charge of municipal affairs of the Town of Blaimore. For more than a year a distinct indifference has been manifested by the ratepayers as a whole in municipal affairs. Not even at the time for the annual nomination and election of councillors and trustees would any of them come forward to fill the vacancies and thus avoid the further expense of a by-election.

Last night, some members of the council arrived on the scene with fire in their eyes, and that fire reflected its influence to the spectators in a small measure.

The meeting opened on time, with Mayor Sinclair and Councillors Inuit, Beebe, Rosen, Putnam and Bartlett, and the secretary-treasurer in attendance. The minutes of the previous meeting were approved, and communications from W. A. Henderson Co., The Salvation Army and West Canadian Cigar Co. were received and filed.

The following accounts were read: Blaimore Hardware Co. $22.10, J. Handley $5.00, Blaimore Enterprise $20.70 and James Bonner $16.50.

Re Handley's account, Councillor Putnam desired that before any relief should be handed out by the relief committee, that important body should confer with the councillors at a regular meeting, which occurs once in two weeks or once in three. In other words the relief committee was simply an organism to be advised by members of the other committees. After some discussion the following resolution was put in effect: "That any relief handed out be secured on the best security possible." Here ended the first lesson.

Re Blaimore Hardware Co.'s account, Councillor Putnam asked who ordered the stove, etc., and for what purpose was it ordered. He was told that the stove and fixtures were secured for the police department, adjoining the council chamber. This department until quite recently, although being rented from W. A. Beebe by the town, had been laying idle, and had a few months ago the council decided to convert the quarters into a court-room and jail, whereupon a modern cage was installed for the accommodation of those who failed to see the error of their ways. During the regime of H. E. Lyon as mayor, these quarters were allotted to J. R. Irwin, the then chief of police, for his free use as police quarters. Mr. Irwin, who like many others at that time, was intensely interested in the town, well understood to rent the quarters to an outsider and pocketed therefrom the equivalent of room rent in a hotel for several months. Some of those who watched the proceedings at that time, were able to speak to our honorable spokesman to find fault in the work of the present council. In spite of the fact that these quarters are liable to be used at any time for police-court sittings and that the climate at this season of the year is slightly different from that of midsummer, Mr. Putnam failed to see the necessity of a stove or fuel or bed-blankets or even the cage, and objected to the bill in question on the grounds that the articles were not necessary and because a request for their supply had not been made to a regular meeting of the council. Mr. Putnam did not like the idea of the Chief of Police occupying or making use of the police quarters without being granted written authority from the council. In this connection he was asked why the secretary-treasurer was not given written permission to use the town office for his duties. Considerable discussion ensued, after which the bill was voted on, all but Mr. Putnam declaring themselves in favor of this appropriation. Here ended the second lesson.

Re account of James Bonner for certain fixtures erected in the town office. Councillor Beebe desired to know who ordered the work done. Mayor Sinclair informed Mr. Beebe that he was responsible. Mr. Beebe next wanted to know what right the Mayor had in undertaking anything of the sort without consulting the chairman of the Works and Property Committee. He could not see the necessity of such fixtures, except for the comfort of a secretary and did not believe in the mayor or secretary taking upon themselves to do what the town could not afford to pay for. The mayor and secretary explained that because of certain individuals in the town who had the habit of making the town office their lodging place, and thus interfering with the work of the secretary, such fixtures would accomplish much where other words had no effect. The secretary has books to look after, and at the present time is busy getting out the tax enforcement return, and his quarters should not be made the lounging place for individuals who have a leisure hour at their disposal and who have no business to transact with the secretary. Following the necessary explanation, the account was duly passed. This third lesson was followed by an illustrative song from Councillor Rosen to this tune: "If I— you could— me a thousand mile?"

Re Blaimore Enterprise account, Councillor Putnam regretted that the town had not another newspaper, otherwise he would avail of the opportunity to "trap our knaves."

Councillor Dutil, as chairman of the Finance Committee, reported the result of an interview with the manager of the Union Bank re finances for the ensuing year.

Councillor Putnam, on behalf of the waterworks committee, asked the council re the best means of getting after delinquent water consumers, or collecting the waterwork's revenue. He did not like the idea of any Tom, Dick or Harry collecting water taxes without authority from the council, and would like the council to put through a resolution authorizing the secretary-treasurer to make a monthly house-to-house collection canvas. bers of the council declared themselves as being opposed to the secretary absenting himself from the town office during office hours, and on motion the Chief of Police was instructed to look after collections.

Dutil-Bartlett—That By-Law 49, appointing officials for 1916, be read a first time. On motion the by-law received its three readings and was finally passed with appointments as follows:

W. A. Henderson Co., as auditors, at $150.00 per annum.
 Dr. MacDonald, as medical health officer, at $200 per annum.

W. Joyce, as secretary-treasurer, at $400 per month.
 A. McLeod, as chief of police, with duties as defined at a recent meeting, with a salary of $600 per month and commission on all licenses collected by him.

Councillor Putnam suggested that a solicitor be appointed, at a nominal retaining fee, but as the legal fraternity was so well represented at this meeting he would not recommend any particular solicitor. This subject

ABIG THREAT FOR CANADA TO FACE AS SIGNING THE TREATY IS ENDED A READJUSTMENT TO MEET THE NEW CONDITIONS

The Great Problem of Restoring to Useful Occupations a Very Considerable Proportion of Canada's Male Population

Which will be out of Employment After the War

The war may not be over till the fall of 1918, but the result is none the less in doubt. In less than a year Canada will have to readjust her productive machinery so that employment may be found not only for a quarter-million of returning soldiers, withdrawn from industry at various times since August, 1914, but for considerably over a hundred thousand men engaged at present in the production of shells, rifles, uniforms, accoutrements and general military supplies.

This vast host to be restored to the occupations of peace represents more than one-fourth of all males in Canada between the ages of twenty and thirty-five. The census of 1911 estimated that the Dominion then had a very slight preponderance of men, especially between the ages of twenty and thirty-five. Indicating that the population had consisted largely of men in the prime of life. There were 320,000 men between the ages of twenty and twenty-five, and only 320,125 women. The disparity of the sexes was even greater between the ages of twenty-five and twenty-nine, the men numbering 370,000 and the women 360,000. This marked disproportion of men over women of corresponding age continues until the post-war generation of five years is reached, in which the men total 152,715 and the women 125,325.

These figures conclusively prove that tens of thousands of returning soldiers must be absolutely footloose, with no facilities for turning them back to the places whence they came, and no occupations for them. That fact makes Canada's task much more complex than it would be, were a great conglomeration of labor at a few points located and absorbed by the army of the returning soldiers over the entire Dominion. The need of the moment is complete coordination between the various governmental organizations of the Dominion, national, provincial and civil—so that the men will be able to find places where they can add to the productivity of the nation and save the mained and the broken down a

The Farmer's Lot

Usually the Success Attained on the Farm Compares Very Favorably With That of the City Dweller

In conversation recently with a well-known farmer, he complained of his lot. "My wife and I," he said, "have been for years of selling our farm and going to home town where we had no chance of buying a farm or quit farming as we find that we must work hard early in the morning to get interest on our investment and a reasonable profit or labor income."

We said to him, "You came to your present farm with very little capital, didn't you?" "Yes," he replied, "we had but little when we began farming and we now own our place and a good deal of cattle. We live well and can afford about all the things we desire. Our work is conning. We must be on hand every day in the year and good help is often hard to get."

"Did you ever stop to consider," we queried, "that for a rainy day or old man you must apply himself closely to his work. The man in the office, clerk, or shop may not be content with his job, but many hours a day as the farmer, but does not know how to do it. He must do around his home and in various ways make his living. The man in the city works as many hours per day as the farmer, but he does not know how to look about his own and note the income he receives. The man in the city may have many of them 'done as well as you have.' How many of them own their own houses and are free from rent? How many of them hold jobs or are doing anything but 'dead-end' work?"

"He said, 'I hadn't thought of it in that light or angle before.' We said, "You have a very open market, but it can arrange that the farmer, but does not know how to do it. He must do around his home and in various ways make his living. The man in the city works as many hours per day as the farmer, but he does not know how to look about his own and note the income he receives. The man in the city may have many of them 'done as well as you have.' How many of them own their own houses and are free from rent? How many of them hold jobs or are doing anything but 'dead-end' work?"

We should remember that happened to our country. The man in the city works as many hours per day as the farmer, but he does not know how to look about his own and note the income he receives. The man in the city may have many of them 'done as well as you have.' How many of them own their own houses and are free from rent? How many of them hold jobs or are doing anything but 'dead-end' work?"

Germany's Naval Stronghold

When Helligland Belongs to the British Empire, and a German Prophecy

A most important part of the German naval defense is the island of Helligland in the North Sea, commanding the western entrance to the English Channel. It is a mass of concentrated, heavily fortified, and is the main base of the German fleet. It is a mass of concentrated, heavily fortified, and is the main base of the German fleet.

The island was perfectly flat on the north coast, and provided no shelter for men or boats. Heavy ordnance could not be placed on the island. The lower portion of the island consisted of heavy winter fens, consisting of ground water seeping through the lower level of the island. The water level was situated. The distance from the sea to the highest point was about 600 feet, and this was the only available place for erecting a fort.

When we used the guns to practice the concussion, brought down the island. The island was a wonder that the Germans have made it a cement island. The island was a wonder that the Germans have made it a cement island. The island was a wonder that the Germans have made it a cement island.

COL. ROOSEVELT DENOUNCES A PACIFICIST POLICY

He Declares that the Criminal Responsibility of Germany for the Heinous Crimes Against Civilization Must be Shared as Well by the Neutral Nations

"A nation too timid to protect its own men, women and children from murder, theft, rape and other crimes, is not worthy to be called a nation. It is a nation of cowards, and it is a nation of cowards. It is a nation of cowards, and it is a nation of cowards. It is a nation of cowards, and it is a nation of cowards."

The letter, which was made public by Mr. Dutton, is a vigorous denunciation of the U.S. policy in the present war. Colonel Roosevelt says that as long as this government regards the European war as a regard to the principles of the peace-act policy, so long will it be a weak and ineffective for international righteousness as China itself. All of the "terrible inquiries" of the last sixteen months can be traced to the policy of the United States. The initial wrong of which Belgium is the victim of Germany must be shared by the neutral powers, headed by the United States.

Brutal Treatment of Russan Prisoners

German Tie Them to Bench and Lash Their Bare Bodies

The following story of German treatment of Russian prisoners is printed by the Associated Press. It was sent a correspondent to the occupied parts of Poland, where he spent two months. The story comes from a Russian prisoner who escaped from a German prison. This man was made a prisoner in Posen, but in the words of the prisoner:

"One day the sergeant said to us: 'What are we to do?' We answered: 'Dig trenches,' he replied. 'It is better to dig trenches than to fight our own people.' The German tried to force us, but we lay down and fought and struggled. Finally the German said: 'I'll teach you a lesson.' A wooden bench was brought, and we were lined up against it and our hands and feet tied. They took four of us and beat us with sticks over our bare bodies. This was done in the presence of the other prisoners. We wept and called out, 'Enough, you beasts.'"

Dizzy Heights on Which the Battle Rages in the Alps

These familiar with the most noted of Alpine heights will follow the Italian fighting in the Trentino. The battle has gained a real success in the capture of the Col di Lana, south of the Dolomites, which gave the capture of a main road running southwest. It was the Italians who attacked on the summit of the highest ridge, and the Austrians, a pivot of the enemy's defense consisted of a series of high peaks, and much war material.

Along the mountain the Italians renewed their attacks and carried positions in the Pavia sector and on the Pongra ridge. Four hundred and eighty prisoners were taken. In the Carno progress was made along the northern slopes of Mount San Michele and towards the Italian border. Austrian Is Beheaded By C.P.R. Train

An Austrian miner named Martin Zar met death near Bellevue tippie on Wednesday afternoon by being run over by the C.P.R. switch engine and several cars. He was 35 years of age, married, his wife and family at present residing in Austria. An inquest will be held before Coroner Pinkney on Tuesday next.

My Love Story

(From the Richmond (V.A.) Times Dispatch.)

A lady of sagacity and beautiful audacity once had the pertinacity to ask me, at her door:

"If I can find a minister who is bold or sinister—why should I stay a spinster—and you're a bachelor."

It was no time for putting off or stammering or stuttering, and I honest, uttering as fast as I could speak:

"Had I a loose Colonel, with founding-barrical, I might feel matrimonial—but NOT on six a week."

She laughed and said quite cynical: "Well, you're the very pinnacle of everything that's fiscal"—but I said nothing more.

And thus we found no minister, and I moved off to Flanders, and she still a spinster, and I'm a bachelor.

The Greek Red Cross Society

In spite of the wavering attitude of the Government, the Greek Red Cross Society under the presidency of Queen Sophia has tendered important services to the wounded of the Allies.

At the outbreak of the war the Greek Red Cross immediately came to the aid of the other Red Cross Societies in the belligerent countries. A sum of 10,000 francs was put at the disposal of the International Red Cross at Geneva. In addition 5,000 francs was sent to each of the Red Cross Societies in England, France, Belgium, Austria-Hungary, and Germany.

A further sum of 5,000 francs was given to the Franco-Russian hospital in Petrograd.

The Greek Red Cross further sent complete hospital detachments for active service in Serbia and Montenegro. The Serbian Mission had a capacity of 100 beds, the Montenegro of 40. In addition assistance of a friendly nature has been given to the English and French Red Cross services now operating in the Mediterranean in connection with the Balkan campaign. The Hellenic society has also acted as an intermediary with the Turkish Government in securing improved conditions for prisoners of war.

At the same time the society has given systematic instruction throughout Greece, and a great many new branches have been organized. One of these is at Vancouver. All these branches are controlled by the Central Committee at Athens and are under obligation to contribute men and supplies. Last year's financial statement shows receipts of 1,422,665 francs.

The Greek Society is thus, in the event of Greece joining the Allies in a position to add considerable strength to the Allied Red Cross forces.

The System

When a man has built a barn—

Tax him.

When a man has cleared a farm—

Tax him!

When he lays another road,

When he grows another head,

He will 'round and get the prod,

Then tax him!

Has a man some idle earth—

Don't tax him!

Though it's climbing up in worth,

Don't tax him!

Let him reap what others sow,

They're rather cunning, you know!

If they were not they would go,

And tax him!

TEN YEARS AGO

(From The Blairmore Times, 1908)

The hardware firm of Kilbs & Reside has been dissolved.

Next week J. W. Ashdown will put on a stage between Frank and Lillie.

While all of the towns in The Pass have grown in size and population during the war, none of them have exceeded Blairmore in this respect. Here, where everything is supposed to be as tranquil as some coral island in the South Sea, a steady amount of building has been going on all summer, with the result that we have many new families in town.

It has often been asked why Blairmore real estate is in constant demand and what reason is there for her existence. This question is easily answered, for all who stop to consider must concede that this is the most central and the natural distributing point for the whole district. Here is the only large expanse of level ground in The Pass suitable for railway yards or the building of a large town, and which is also the only spot in the district not subject to the fierce winds so prevalent in this section of Alberta. Although the mines at Blairmore are not working full time, they are in strong hands, and it is only a matter of a little time until Blairmore becomes the chief residential town of The Pass.

C. A. Kingensmith, who up to a short time ago had charge of the dining room of the Coleman hotel, has secured the Elk hotel at Elko, B.C.

The spur railway being put into Hillcrest Mines is about completed and the steel laid.

Coleman last Monday morning had a narrow escape from a serious fire. In the outcrop across the Pacific hotel one of the boarders moved his bed against hot stovepipe and left it there. Fire broke out and but for the timely arrival of help would soon have been beyond control. The damage done, however, was slight.

Harry J. Matheson has been appointed a license commissioner for district 6. He attended the meeting of the commissioners at Medicine Hat week.

Thursday the anniversary of "Rabbits" Burns will be duly celebrated. Banquets will be held at several points in honor of the death of the famous Scotch poet. It is difficult for many to believe, for instance, that haggis is food, that kilts are clothes and that the noise of the bagpipes is music. Not to appreciate these is the misfortune of those who are born outside the Land of Cakes. But Scotch songs, on the other hand, make a whole world kin. They seem to be almost as much a production of nature as the ripple and splash of the burn that plunge down the heathery side of Ben Lomond. Who needs a Scotch to join in singing "Annie Laurie" or "Comin' Through the Rye" Trust the Scots to remember the 23rd of January.

An Old Country farmer lost his barn last year by fire. They said at the time that he was insured for more than the building was worth, and that he was not sorry to see the old shed destroyed. Unfortunately for his hopes, however,
the insurance people took advantage of an option in their policy and replaced the barn instead of giving him the money—greatly to his disgust. Not long afterwards the traveling agent of a life insurance company came into the village, and, among others, asked the old man to effect an insurance on his life. "No, no!" said the farmer;
"I should feel as if I were a-going to die tomorrow." "Well," said the agent, facetiously, "if that is the case, take the assurance on your wife!" "You don't expect me
there, either," chuckled the old man. "I know the way of you insurance chaps; you would just go and give me another old jade even worse than the first."
